Line 10: Human mobilities

This line will address the different types of population displacements –both internal and external- and the problems associated with this complex process and with the diverse causes (voluntary or involuntary) and that are closely related to development in countries of origin and host countries. Other topics of interest include, for example: the causes of displacement, socioeconomic and cultural impact on origin and destination, organisation and activity of diasporas, public migratory policies, social attitudes and stereotypes towards immigration, the integration of immigrants, humanitarian crises and forced migration, migrations and gender, human trafficking and migrant smuggling, refuge and trends in the application of the right of asylum, etc.
