Line 2: International development agenda and public policies

This line addresses those aspects related to the configuration, development, monitoring and evaluation of the International Development Agenda, as well as the theoretical and political principles that support it, its potential and limitations, the actors that participate in it, the public policies that are implemented and their coherence. In this framework it is possible to include the analysis of both the development and results of the Millennium Development Goals Agenda, the Aid Effectiveness Agenda, the Development Financing Agenda or any other sectoral development agenda, as well as studies related with the configuration and monitoring of the current Sustainable Development agenda.
