Line 5: The international cooperation system: actors, instruments, financing and alternative views of cooperation

This line includes works that analyse (i) the role of the different actors that intervene in the international cooperation system, including the different types of donors (multilateral organisations, state and sub-state public agencies, Non Governmental Organizations (NGDOs, social movements, companies), recipient countries and regulatory institutions; (ii) the new cooperation mechanisms, instruments and approaches; (iii) sources of financing and their innovations; (iv) critical views on traditional cooperation; and (v) the contributions of alternative perspectives on traditional cooperation such as South-South, South-North, and triangular cooperation. Similarly, the line holds contributions that analyse the actual logic of the cooperation system and that question the current system from other realist and constructivist epistemologies within international political economy.
